Colmac Coil Improves A+R Work Room Air Cooler Design

Work room air cooler increases worker comfort and reduces downtime

Colville, WA: March 4th, Colmac Coil releases an improved A+R air cooler. The new design provides a lower installation height, increased worker comfort, easier to service design, and reduces downtime. The A+R is an “above rail” style for use in food processing work rooms where cleanability and workspace is critical. The Improved A+R design is now available in Colmac Coil A+Pro online selection software.

“These features were custom in the past and have now become standard across the A+R product line.” said Jeremy Olberding, Vice President, Colmac Coil Manufacturing.

The new improvements included as standard:

- A hygienic, fully seal welded, wider drain pan that extends past the width of the air cooler to eliminate overspray and splashing.
- Lower installation height for more use of workspace.
- Air deflector design that provides good air coverage, easy to clean, and easier to access the fan motor.
- Low sound fan motors.
- New low-profile option for low ceiling applications.
- Clean in place option
